Primary account owners are responsible for distributing their online access information to joint owners.

Online banking is a free service provided to Kilowatt Community Credit Union members under the following conditions:

- You have an open and active account with the credit union.
- Your account is in good standing.
- You agree to receive your account statements through email.

As a primary owner on an account you may transfer funds between your savings, checking or special savings accounts. You may also request a check withdrawal from any of those accounts be mailed to you.

If there are other accounts that you are listed as a joint owner, you may request access to those accounts. Please note that you may only transfer INTO those accounts. You will NOT have the ability to access withdrawals or transfer funds from these accounts. In order to activate this feature, you must list that primary account holder's name and account number below.

By signing below you understand that you are requesting to be signed up for online access and e-statements. You agree to be held fully liable for any actions completed by joint account owners or individuals you have provided your online web access information to. You understand and acknowledge that you have received the EFT (Electronic Funds Transfer) disclosure and agree to its terms. The credit union reserves the right to revoke this service if you fail to comply with the previously listed conditions.

I understand that I may cancel this access authorization and password on my own, at any time, by providing written notice to the credit union.
